

Parker M. [REDACTED]
12/4/08
2nd hour

The Robots Are At It Now

12/7/2069: Today I founds this thing in the attic and it, I guess it was this thing called a journal. I didn't know what it was until I read the first three pages and found out what the thing was. It said that it was this thing that people wrote in (they actually wrote, I guess).

12/9/2069: Today I lost my job to a robot! They don't even have feelings. How am I going to pay the bills? I guess I'll have to move out and move into the streets (in a cardboard box)!

12/15/2069: Hi again journal, I'm so excited! My old boss called me and said I could work with the robots if I went to college for four years. I get to start my job next week, I guess. I also start college for robot science.

12/23/2069: I started college yesterday; I had no idea that my teacher was going to be a robot! My new job supervising the robot is very difficult since I was still on my first week of robot science at miscellaneous university.

12/25/2069: My college got the day off because it being Christmas, but I still have to go to work.

1/1/2070: I'm running out of room in this journal so I'll keep this short. The new robots that were made are made with feelings. Robots with feelings, what's next, robots that look like people? I don't know